Are you a therapist who is seeking a change of pace? Maybe a change of location? Why not consider working in the Yukon?

We are seeking a registered mental health clinician (i.e., registered psychotherapist, MSW/RSW, or registered psychologist) for in-person individual and couple's counselling in our Whitehorse office.

As a mental health professional, you are highly motivated to help others learn to help themselves. You are adept at seeing the best in the client and helping them to make the most of themselves. You are always observant, able to stay present and empathize with clients when they are distressed. You seek to understand origins of behaviour and work collaboratively with clients to help them increase their own self-reflection and self-help skills. You strongly believe that we are in the business of giving hope, skills, and support. You can see and accept differing perspectives. You are always respectful and encouraging and this is an essential part of your passion for being a counsellor / therapist. You delight in your clients' successes and improvements.

The opportunity for an amazing work-life balance is also a feature of this position. The Yukon is booming, and you could be a part of the adventure! Breathtaking wilderness, stunningly beautiful natural landscapes, and a wealth of opportunities. Whitehorse is a friendly, welcoming community, with a low crime rate, good schools, and a diverse population. After work, year-round events and festivals will entertain you whenever you are not participating in one of the many outdoor activities available summer and winter.

What You'll be Doing:

- Assessing, counselling, and offering clinical guidance / psycho-emotional support to clients;
- Liaising professionally with colleagues, other professionals, and relatives of the clients; and
- Maintaining accurate records and reports, as well as relevant/related administrative tasks.

What You Bring to the Position:

- You are a registered psychotherapist / clinical counsellor / registered social worker / registered psychologist / registered psychological associate / registered provisional psychologist;
- Strong professional ethics and behaviour;
- Empathy and compassion;
- A desire to offer life-changing help and guidance for client growth, development, and wellness;
- Clear communication skills and an active listener;
- Ability to support clients long term (proven client retention skills);
- Full driver's license and access to a vehicle (with a block heater)

What You'll Gain:

- Environmental Benefits: Breathtaking natural beauty, peaceful environment, a wide array of wildlife, lack of pollution, (and did we mention the Northern Lights?);
- Community Benefits: Friendly, culturally diverse, year-round activities and events;
- Financial Benefits: Competitive pay, health care benefits package, CRA rebates including moving expenses, Northern Living Allowance;
- Personal Benefits: Knowing that you are having a significant positive impact on people's lives, knowing that you are an important part of the healthy growth of the Yukon
